Hampton, Feb. 19, 1914.

Report of Fire Chief

I hereby submit the second annual report of the fire department for the year ending Feb. 1st, 1914, containing number of officers and men and condition of apparatus.

FORCE OF DEPARTMENT

The force of the department consists.

One chief, one captain, two lieutenants, one clerk, one steward and twenty members.

FIRES ATTENDED

Feb. 16, 1913, freight car at freight yard.

April 8, 1913, James Craig's ice house. Thought to be incendiary, $1500 insurance.

May 18, 1913, Charles Wood's chimney fire.

June 18, 1913, Fred Lamprey's brush fire.

Aug. 15, 1913, Orrin Steven's house and out buildings. Insured. Ell and shed and northwest corner Baptist parsonage badly damaged.

Sept. 3, 1913, Mr. White's chimney fire.

Sept. 10, 1913, Mrs. George Emery's hen house and out buildings. Total loss.

Oct. 4, 1913, William Felch's barn and ell burned. Insured.

Wagon went to the Beach to the Ashworth fire.

Jan. 1914, Walter Emery's roof and chimney fire.

Jan. 31, 1914, D. A. Towle's fire in cellar from furnace.

APPARATUS

One combination chemical wagon, consisting of one large tank and twenty-three pony chemicals, two extension and two roof ladders, two axes, three lanterns, eleven water pails, four lengths of hose, and four fire hooks, and is known as chemical No. 1, and is kept at Mr. Frank Mason's residence.

RECOMMENDATIONS

I would recommend that two more axes and two crow bars be bought and placed on the wagon.

And also that the town appoint the chief of fire department at the next town meeting and thereby give him the authority prescribed by the laws of New Hampshire.

CONCLUSION

In closing my second report to the people of the town I would say I have done my best to give the town good service and shall be pleased to serve again this year if the town wishes.

If anyone knows of a fire please call central telephone office and they will notify the company.

I wish to thank the people of the town for the help given at the fires, and the company for the good service given.

Respectfully yours,

ELMER C. KING,

Chief.

Hampton, Feb. 19, 1914

Your committee and the trustees congratulate ourselves on the very efficient corps now in charge of Hampton Academy and High School. We had to find a successor to Mr. Ross in the middle of a term, and had short time in which to do it. We were exceptionably fortunate. Our present principal, Mr. Elwell, is a thorough scholar, a successful teacher, and good disciplinarian, enthusiastic, secures good recitations, and is in remarkably pleasant relations with the pupils. He also is much interested in the school. We could not have found a man anywhere better adapted to the place. And he is well supported by his assistants. Miss Cole fully sustains her record as a successful teacher.

And Miss Blake's work is entirely satisfactory. We expected that she would succeed, but she has surpassed our expectations. The attendance has increased, and the school has not within the knowledge of your committee, been in as good a condition as it is now. Our chief difficulty is lack of funds. The town should give us more liberal aid. It could not sustain a High School as cheapfully under any other conditions. We intend to add vocational training to the curriculum, and bring the school into closer relations to the future life of the pupils. For this the outlook is hopeful. But this must be left to a future report, as the work has not yet been begun.

For the Committee,

J. A. ROSS, Chairman,

Report of Superintendent

TO THE SCHOOL BOARD OF HAMPTON, N. H.

Gentlemen;—I have the honor to present herewith my third annual report and the third in the series of the district superintendent's reports.

During the past year the work has been constructive, expanding, intensifying and enriching the elementary curriculum so as to completely fulfill in letter and in spirit the State Program of Studies for the Elementary Schools of New Hampshire, and to adapt the subject-matter to the needs of the children of the community.

There has been a growth of power, a removal of the waste and losses of the time-element, an increase of enthusiasm, and of the desire for self-activity on the part of the pupils, and a decided decrease in the number of overage children. The repairs at the East and North buildings have made a noticeable improvement in their appearance. Well-kept, well-equipped, clean, wholesome rooms make an unconscious appeal to the sensitive organism of the child, and he reflects the nature of his environment.

Additions to our supply of text books and supplementary readers have been made within the year. Our books are for the most part new, up-to-date texts and they are in an excellent condition. A live, business-like, wholesome atmosphere prevails in our schoolrooms. The aim is to gain permanent knowledge rather than to load the mind with the sole end in view of passing future examinations. The visitor cannot fail to note signs of progress along many lines. The inculcation of hygienic principles, of ethical and patriotic ideals has been constantly emphasized.

At the present time and for some time past the superintendent has been preparing syllabi of the subject-matter taken up in the several elementary courses. They will be placed in the hands of teachers and the Board for reference, and in some form brought to the attention of the citizens. The library has been of very great assistance in providing special material for class-room purposes. After completion a pamphlet containing all of these syllabi might be printed for the use of teachers and pupils. The home could in this way be kept better informed as to the quantity and the quality of the work done by the boys and the girls.

Attention should be called to the recent amendments to the attendance laws, extending the compulsory limit to the age of sixteen, unless the elementary course is satisfactorily completed beforehand. Until recently the attendance this year has been good. Of late whooping-cough and severe colds have been prevalent, and many have lost several weeks of school work. These protracted absences will unfortunately result in more retardation at the end of this year than at the end of last year. It is hoped that every parent will strive to make the misfortune of forced absence as light as possible.

The superintendent respectfully requests the citizens to re-read carefully his last year's report. Almost everything included in that report is as pertinent now as when written. Especially important were three features of school administration and organization which were mentioned as worthy of careful thought, viz. (1) medical supervision; (2) the development of courses in vocational training; (3) a central school building to accommodate all the elementary pupils in the town.

(1). An expert visiting the schools of any New England town would be impressed with the considerable number of children afflicted with some form of physical weakness or defect. Poor teeth, adenoids, enlarged tonsils, defective breathing, mental dullness, frequent colds, defects of prenunciation bear testimony to the need of care and attention that the home and school do not supply. Parents frequently do not notice these defects as do the teachers, and are slow to admit that there is trouble when it is called to their attention. Oftentimes life-long misery may be prevented by immediate and proper treatment. Here is where the school physicians's services are most valuable. Statistics indicate that one-fourth of all school children are suffering from some physical ailment and that they could be relieved or cured if cared for in time. There is no more important phase of recent educational development than medical supervision. Our aim should be not merely to pour knowledge into children's minds; it is rather to develop the whole man and the whole woman, to make as useful citizens as we can. Every existing defect impairs the success and happiness of the individual. Rightly considered, the small expense of medical supervision would be more than balanced by the value derived in conserving the health of the community, and in the uninterrupted attendance of children at school throughout the school year.

The last General Court passed an act permitting any school district to adopt its provisions. Over a year ago the superintendent and the teachers inspected the sight and the hearing of the pupils, and reports were made to the parents and to the State Department of Public Instruction. This will be repeated this year.

(2) Plans are already being made for increasing scope of the work of the local High School by introducing courses in the domestic arts and in agriculture. Some of the necessary funds have already been provided through the generosity of a thoughtful doner. This is in line with the trend of the educational thought of the present. These courses should be but the forerunners of other courses in the mechanic arts so successfully pursued elsewhere. It has been difficult for people to realize that education does not consist solely of "book-learning." There is nothing essentially new about this work. St. Paul, it will be recalled, was taught tent-making, although he was trained for the law and studied at the feet of the great Jewish doctor, Gamaliel. The trade guilds of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries designed their education so as to fit the youth to be useful, self-dependent members of society. Our forefathers recognized the folly of training but one-half the man. A generation ago the New England farm furnished to boys most excellent manual training and the old-time home with its large family and varied household activity to girls an admirable domestic training. Under these former conditions there was no necessity for the schools to attempt industrial education. A different situation exists today. The changed industrial and social conditions have left the modern home as a rule, unable to provide necessary exercise in manual dexterity. So there arises the one-sidedness of our customary education. Now that recognition of the intimate connection between hand and brain, between thought and execution is becoming general, we are arranging our courses so that there may be no neglect of the one or the other of these vital elements. The school system of a town that is aroused to the needs of the day has drawing, the manual arts. the domestic arts and agriculture in its courses of instruction. These subjects do not crowd out but correlate with and enhance the effectiveness of the work in the "three r's". All who have longed to see the schools teaching "practical, common-sense" subject-matter and not "wasting their time with the frills and fads," must feel that at last their judgment has been vindicated.

(3). The time seems to have come when we must give careful consideration as to whether we are deriving the greatest benefits possible in return for our annual outlay. As suggested last year a central building is one of our greatest needs. The tax-payer should consider the matter very thoughtfully from the view-point he usually takes, economy. Some features which should be embodied in such a structure are as follows: (a) It should be well-situated near the center of the town with ample playground facilities. (b). It should be heated and ventilated according to the most modern ideas. (c). It should have rooms to accommodate all the elementary pupils of the town. (d). It should also include rooms for the teaching of vocational branches. (e). One room should be provided as an office for the School Board and Superintendent in which all the books and supplies and school records could be stored. (f). Well heated saniaries should be included in the building.

Among many advantages that might be cited in favor of the central building may be mentioned: (a). It would cut in half the annual expenditure due to transportation. (b). It would decrease the bill for fuel. (c). It would afford healthy, wholesome surroundings for our children, because of superior heating, lighting and ventilating. (d) It would make possible indoor heated, sanitary closets. (e). It would relieve the overcrowding of pupils in the Center Primary School. (f). It would insure better discipline in and around the school premises. (g). It would make possible a new plan of grading which would make our system in teaching power and time-efficiency the equal of many cities. (h). It would eliminate the many small repairs that are now so frequently made and yet prove so large an item in our annual budget. (i). It would add beauty to the town, be a source of pride to the citizens, and be an inducement to prospective residents to settle here. (j). It could be made a civic and educational center.

The superintendent feels that there ought to be formulated in some way a plan for bringing the parents and citizens into closer touch with the work of the public schools and their needs. His knowledge of the schools, the pupils, and the many new phases of our local situation is not being used to the best advantage. He would be glad by appointment to meet and confer with parents and pupils. He will hold office hours one evening each week, and on every other Saturday from 9 o'clock to 11 o'clock a. m.

In closing, I wish to thank one and all for the confidence that has been reposed in me, the Board for their unfailing support, the teaching corps for their loyalty and co-operation, the parents and the citizens for their generosity and liberality. These will be a source of inspiration to me in the future and a spur to higher endeavor and service.

Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT T. LANE.
